There's no denying that I'm a sucker for a good joke. Whether I'm mad, sad or stressed beyond belief, jokes possess some magical power that can lift me from even the worst of moods. I don't know what it is, but when I hear a joke I simply can't help but laugh. Maybe it's my giggly personality or simply the fact that I really love to laugh.

"Make 'Em Laugh" was written for the 1952 musical by Nacio Herb Brown and Arthur Freed, but any similarity with the Cole Porter track "Be A Clown" is not coincidental. Although Arthur Freed (1894-1973) was a lyricist, he was best known as a producer, and produced many, many musicals in the 1940s and 1950s.
