Patristics or patrology is the study of the early Christian writers who are designated Church Fathers. The names derive from the combined forms of Latin pater and Greek patér (father). The period is generally considered to run from the end of New Testament times or end of the Apostolic Age (c. AD 100) to either AD 451 (the date of the Council of Chalcedon) or to the Second Council of Nicaea ...

Patristics - Wikipedia

Patrology is the science which deals with the life, writings and doctrine of the Fathers of the Church. It refers to the study of the Church Fathers not so much regarding their lives as their doctrine regarding faith and morals and Church discipline - which is laid out in various collections of their writings that are still available to us.

Patrology, the study of the writings of the Fathers of the Church, has more commonly been known in England as "patristics", or, more commonly still, as "patristic study". Some writers, chiefly in Germany, have distinguished between patrologia and patristica: Fessler, for instance, defines patrologia as the science which provides all that is necessary for the using of the works of the Fathers ...
